

Pennsylvania Forester list

This list is maintained by the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (DCNR) Bureau of Forestry as a starting place to link landowners to resource professionals.

Pennsylvania has no standards by which a person may call themselves a “forester”, however the people on this list have post high school education in natural resource management.

This list is broken down by counties with each person indicating the services they offer as well as any certifications they hold. Services and certifications each individual can pick from is listed below.
